This fireman then remains on the line until the other firemen's telephones connected to the conference The individual firemen have the ability to arrangement are answered. disconnect from the conference arrangement and be returned to their normal telephone service by depression of the hook switch, after receiving notification of the emergency. One line of conference equipment is required for each fireman's service connected to the system.

The common equipment must be associated with at least one business one-party service. - 4. The telephone equipment located on each fireman's premises may be equipped to provide for the fireman to activate Fire Siren Control Unit by the operation of a button located on his telephone equipment.
